

NUR FÜR DICH: JOB DE LUXE.

Lead Backend Developer (m/f) (#101471)

On behalf of our client, a Berlin based startup running a music-streaming made-to-measure service for classical music, we are looking for a Lead Backend Developer (m/f). Apply if you can imagine sharing the vision of a platform that allows artists to distribute their work properly and listeners to receive metadata and to enjoy their favorite music, curated by connoisseurs.

Reasons to join our client's team

- You will join an experienced multinational team with diverse backgrounds in digital product developing
- You love to challenge yourself and want to develop personally in dealing with complex tasks and tons of responsibility
- You flourish in a working environment that is based on equality and diversity: no discrimination at all
- You want to build our clients backend systems next version as well as APIs
- You look forward to grow as the company grows: team leading function and the potential to scale with team sizes included

Your profile

- You bring wide experience with Java and at least one further programming language
- You have strong communication skills, you are self-organized and a team player personality
- You are experienced in architecture and development of backend systems with a scalable production quality
- You have already developed APIs in the past
- You are able to lead a team with responsibility for our client's core systems

Join the team and apply now! Send us an e-mail at sid@alphacoders.de including the reference number 101471. Your contact person is Sid Brammer. We are looking forward to hearing from you!
